I'm a developer. I see the practices of this giant monopoly crush the little guy. I've seen new technologies come along just to have Macrosquash crush them and have the technology disappear. I was excited when the AT case started.

I'm extremely disappointed with the fact that a judge ruled them a monopoly and then our gov did nothing. In fact, all I've seen happen are some stock changes, which have since recovered better than before. Can you do nothing right? Can't you even follow up on your own decisions?

Even now they continue the practices they have followed since the beginning. Innovation is still stifled for half implemented crap.

I truly believe that MS must have paid off those in charge, how else could this obvious travesty of justice occur.
